

WHERE WERE YOU WHEN YOU WERE? ON ERES QUAN HI ERES?

BY JANA MONTLLOR BLANES

Jana, daughter of the renowned Ovidi Montllor, lost the only photograph she took of her father when she was a child. Thirty years after his death, Jana embarks on a filmic journey to make sense of the fragility of her personal memories in the face of public memory. To fill in the gaps, she will delve into the public archive from an intimate gaze that explores the boundaries between memory and imagination, and talk to some of the people closest to him. Throughout the journey, Jana's loss will merge with that of Ovidi, who first lost his political voice and then his physical voice.
