

DUAL(S)

BY ÈRIKA SÁNCHEZ MARCOS

That love does not consist of a search for the other, but of oneself in the other, is something that Albor, as a scientist specializing in quantum entanglement, is clear about. However, it is not until she discovers Takashi, in the audience at a conference, that she really understands those words. In that moment, their lives are irreparably damaged and they must understand in a very short time what the connection is between them and what they want to do from this moment on.
