

DOWNRIVER, A TIGER

RIU AVALL, UN TIGRE

BY VICTOR DIAGO

Júlia arrived in Glasgow some time ago, fleeing Barcelona. She wanted to start over. Years have passed and she seems stuck: in the mornings she tries to pursue her career as a photographer, at night she washes dishes in a restaurant.

One afternoon while taking portraits of pedestrians crossing a bridge, one of her eyes begins to fail. As illness spreads, Júlia will begin a search into the past to the depths of Glasgow and its history.

The river will carry her towards a memory: the day she met a mysterious group of men who pulled objects from the depths of the water and among them a strange Indian boy, Shubham, who also came to the city from far away in search of a new life.
